The Solemnity of The Most Holy Trinity

June 14 & 15, 2014

Theme: God so loved the world. The Father, Son and Spirit, three persons in one God, reveal to us what it means to live in intimate relationship and perfect unity. It is a message which our lonely and fragmented world needs to hear. Christians who have been baptized, "In the name of the Father and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit" enter into Trinitarian life. Our relationships are to be signs of unity and communion. The way we work, live and love should speak of intimacy, care and love for each other. It is to live God's life.

A Dad Is a Special Friend

He's always there to lend a hand, to give advice, to smile,
To comfort or encourage or just be with you awhile.

He's a special man whose love and caring seem to have no end -
He's a teacher and supporter, he's your dad and lifelong friend.

Happy Father's Day!

STEWARDSHIP A DISCIPLE'S RESPONSE

A Pastoral Letter on Stewardship—10th Anniversary Edition

(Part 10—this reflection will be updated every second week)

II. JESUS' WAY

THE IMAGE OF THE STEWARD

Jesus sometimes describes a disciple's life in terms of stewardship (cf. Mt 25:14-30; Lk 12:42-48), not because being a steward is the whole of it but because this role sheds a certain light on it. An oikonomos or steward is one to whom the owner of a household turns over responsibility for caring for the property, managing affairs, making resources yield as much as possible, and sharing the resources with others. The position involves trust and accountability.

A parable near the end of Matthew's Gospel (cf. Mt 25:14-30) gives insight into Jesus' thinking about stewards and stewardship. It is the story of "a man who was going on a journey," and who left his wealth in silver pieces to be tended by three servants. Two of them respond wisely by investing the money and making a handsome profit. Upon returning, the master commends them warmly and rewards them richly. But the third behaves foolishly, with anxious pettiness, squirreling away the master's wealth and earning nothing; he is rebuked and punished.

The silver pieces of this story stand for a great deal besides money. All temporal and spiritual goods are created by and come from God. That is true of everything human beings have: spiritual gifts like faith, hope, and love; talents of body and brain; cherished relationships with family and friends; material goods; the achievements of human genius and skill; the world itself. One day God will require an accounting of the use each person has made of the particular portion of these goods entrusted to him or her.

Each will be measured by the standard of his or her individual vocation. Each has received a different "sum"—a unique mix of talents, opportunities, challenges, weaknesses and strengths, potential modes of service and response—on which the Master expects a return. He will judge individuals according to what they have done with what they were given.

St. Ignatius of Loyola begins his Spiritual Exercises with a classic statement of the "first principle and foundation" permeating this way of life. "Human beings," he writes, "were created to praise, reverence and serve God our Lord, and by this means to save their souls. The other things on the face of the earth are created for them to help them in attaining the end for which they are created. Hence they are to make use of these things in as far as they help them in the attainment of their end, and they must rid themselves of them in as far as they provide a hindrance to them. . . . Our one desire and choice should be what is more conducive to the end for which we are created." St. Ignatius, fervently committed to the apostolate as he was, understood that the right use of things includes and requires that they be used to serve others.

What does all this say to busy people immersed in practical affairs? Is it advice only for those whose vocations lead them to withdraw from the world? Not as Jesus sees it: "But seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things will be given you besides" (Mt 6:33).

"As each one of us has received a gift, used to serve one another as good stewards of God's varied grace (1Peter 4:10)."

Protocol Update — Blessed Sacrament Parish is scheduled for a June 19, 2014 "pre-audit" to be done by the Archbishop's protocol office. This pre-audit is a review of our progress to-date in implementing the Archdiocese's Protocols for Responsible Parish Ministry. Several rural parishes and some city parishes have already completed their pre-audit in preparation for the formal Canada-wide Insurance Company audit to determine if a parish is eligible to receive ongoing insurance coverage. As previously reported, Blessed Sacrament employees, collection counters and finance council members have all completed their protocol documents and the pre-screening process for high security positions. The next phase of protocol implementation will be for all parish volunteers serving in high security and general security positions.
